President
Pacific Daily News

Rindraty Celes Limtiaco is the current president of the Pacific Daily News. She has a BA in journalism and happily married with 3 children. She is involved in many organizations. Rindraty serves as chairwoman for Sanctuary, Inc., secretary for SKAL, and is a board member for the Rotary Club of Tumon Bay and Guam Chamber of Commerce.

Rindraty thinks women have very specific issues in the world of business. “I think we’d like to say that we’d rather be treated as equals than have to separate ourselves and our issues from the mainstream, but that isn’t the current reality. There are real obstacles to women entering, furthering and succeeding in the work force that the organization can address.”

Life Quote: I’m not good with life quotes – not really my thing. I just do my best for my family, myself, my community and my company.
